

HMS Medical School Community Resource Guide

Updated January 2024

Preface

Welcome the Harvard Medical School (HMS) Community! This Community Resource Guide is published by the Office for Diversity Inclusion and Community Partnership (DICP) to help incoming faculty, fellows, residents, and students become acquainted with the Harvard Medical School campus, its affiliated hospitals, and the surrounding areas.

As a resource for underserved and marginalized communities, this guide delves into sources of support at Harvard Medical School, Harvard University, affiliated institutions, and beyond. This guide features services that cater to minority consumers, as well as other businesses, services and resources in the greater Boston area, including diversity-related offices and faculty development offices at HMS and affiliates. In addition to these offices, Harvard University programs, organizations, and safety resources provide community members with a sense of belonging and security. Not only does this guide depict the HMS community, but it illustrates neighboring communities through restaurants, local events, multicultural festivals, museums, concert halls, and more.

HARVARD MEDICAL SCHOOL DIVERSITY STATEMENT:

Harvard Medical School is committed to convening and nurturing a diverse community of individuals dedicated to promoting excellence and leadership in medicine and science through education, research, clinical care and service. Our unique perspectives, talents, experiences and contributions as HMS students, trainees, faculty, staff and administrators are the foundation and drivers of our excellence.

We acknowledge the strengths and weaknesses of our history and actively promote social justice, challenge discrimination and address disparities and inequities.

We celebrate the multiple dimensions of diversity that each member of our community offers, including, but not limited to, race, ethnicity, sex, gender identity, sexual orientation, socioeconomic circumstance, national origin, geographic background, immigration status, ability and disability, physical characteristics, veteran status, political ideology, religious belief and age.

We provide a safe environment where all members of our community can engage in dialogue, question, learn and contribute to their fullest potential.

We respect the dignity of all members of our community and aspire to ensure that all feel valued and supported.

We provide education and training that emphasize respect for differences in culture, language and life experience and that address both health disparities and the role that implicit and explicit bias can play in decision making.

We advance diversity and inclusion in recruitment, admissions, hiring, retention and promotion.

We prioritize diversity and inclusion as we develop HMS policies, practices and procedures. We support community engagement and partner with our local, national and global communities to advance the diversity pipeline and eliminate health disparities.

We continuously monitor our diversity and inclusion efforts to ensure that the outcomes bring HMS closer to reflecting the diversity found in our patients, community and nation.

We each belong to the HMS community.

We are Harvard Medicine.

Office for Diversity Inclusion and Community Partnership (DICP)

DICP MISSION:

To advance diversity inclusion in health, biomedical, behavioral, and STEM fields that build individual and institutional capacity to achieve excellence, foster innovation, and ensure equity in health locally, nationally, and globally.

ABOUT DICP:

DICP supports its mission through several, interconnected programs that focus on specific aspects of the career pathway from K-12 to leadership, including attending to points of transitions. Policies and practices are designed to build a culture based on inclusive excellence.

DICP promotes the increased recruitment, retention and advancement of diverse faculty, particularly individuals from groups underrepresented in medicine, at HMS and to oversee all diversity activities involving Harvard Medical School (HMS) faculty, trainees, students and staff.

The Minority Faculty Development Program (est.1990), a component of DICP, sponsors programs for the development of Harvard Medical School faculty and trainees, with an emphasis on mentoring and leadership, as well as programs that are designed to reach out to the pre-college, college, graduate and postdoctoral populations with the goal of bringing outstanding students from groups underrepresented in medicine into the biomedical science pipeline.

Guiding the work of DICP is the framework of the “7C’s”:

- Continuity: develop K-12 diversity in faculty and leadership positions
- Consistency: maintain a forward momentum to change institutional climate and culture
- Collaboration: work with different communities, organizations, departments, and academic fields
- Creativity: respond and shift our work to reflect changing times
- Communication: use varied methods, including technology, to communicate with multiple constituencies
- Consideration: recognize people’s multiple identities and the impact of intersectionality
- Commitment: integrate diversity efforts systemically at every level of an organization and community

Career Development

Weather Information

Seasons

Fall

The most gorgeous season in New England, a typical Boston fall hosts beautiful foliage and great weather.

What to expect:

- Hotter, summer-like temperatures extend into September with an average high of 73 and a low of 58, although some days may reach up to 80.
- Peak foliage hits in the middle of October, with crisp, comfortable temperatures averaging in the low 60s, with an average low of 47.
- Fall in Boston can be particularly rainy, with a total average of 21 days of rain through September-November. While November takes the lead with 8 rainy days, the month is still a great time to visit as the humidity of the summer is completely gone and temperatures sit in the low 50s.

Winter

The coldest season of New England, although beautiful, tends to be very long.

What to expect:

- Average of 5 hours of sunlight per day in November, December, and January.
- The average temperature during winter months, (November through March) is about 36 degrees Fahrenheit
- New England tends to have the most rain during the winter months as well, averaging about 10 inches during the winter. If new to the area, it is always best to remember to wear a lot of layers during the winter months and keep an umbrella in close proximity!

Spring

Spring (March through May) is usually on the cooler side at the beginning, since winter never seems to want to leave New England!

What to expect:

- The average temperature is around 48 degrees Fahrenheit. However, when it
- does warm up toward the middle and latter portions, Boston is quite delightful.
- Spring, too, tends to be a bit on the wet side with an average of 3.5 inches of rain during these months. A sweater and umbrella are always smart things to leave the house with.

Summer

Summer in New England is humid at times but it is mostly very enjoyable. There are all sorts of festivals, farmers markets and events going on outdoors during this time.

What to expect:

- The average temperature during summer (June through August) is about 71 degrees Fahrenheit.
- Summer definitely cures the effects of Seasonal Affective Disorder with an average of 10 hours of sunlight per day.
- Boston averages only about 3 inches of rain during these months so put away the umbrella and pull out the shorts!
- All good things must come to an end, so enjoy the three months of summer because Fall arrives as soon as September does.
